

TOKKŌTAI (特攻隊)

CONTEMPORARY AUSTRALIAN AND JAPANESE ARTISTS ON WAR AND THE BATTLE OF SYDNEY HARBOUR

Tokkōtai: Contemporary Australian and Japanese artists on war and the Battle of Sydney Harbour is a suite of installations and immersive experiences which acknowledge the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Sydney Harbour. 75 years ago the birthplace of modern Australia came under foreign attack for the first and only time. On the night of 31 May 1942 three Japanese midget submarines entered the waters of Sydney Harbour – the surprise attack resulted in chaos and panic in the nation's largest and oldest city and left an indelible mark on Australian identity and the course of our history – twenty one Australian Naval personnel and six Japanese submariners perished in the attack.

To mark the 75th anniversary of this event, Mosman Art Gallery has commissioned six Australian and Japanese artists to interpret and respond to this remarkable story in a suite of new works to be displayed in Headland Park's T5 Camouflage Fuel Tank – an industrial scale former naval oil tank built and camouflaged against Japanese attack during World War II.
